

Remarks

The present response is to the Office Action mailed on October 25, 2005. Claims 1-10 are presented below for examination. Claims 7-10 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 101 for being directed to non-statutory subject matter. Claims 1-6 are indicated as allowed.

Regarding claims 7-10, the Examiner states that the combined limitations of claim 7 can be interpreted as a series of mental and/or manual steps. Although elements of computer control seem to be present, nevertheless, the capture of URL's usernames, and passwords can be mentally noted by a user, and manually given as a list to a third party system that happens to have a network connection. Claims 8-10 are rejected for fully incorporating deficiencies of their respective base claim.

In response, applicant herein amends claim 7 to positively recite that the method is implemented on a computer by software-enabled computer functions, completely transparent to the user. Although it would still seem to be possible to imagine that the user could manually accomplish these steps, it would be difficult to imagine that the user could do so transparently to himself and his own awareness. Applicant believes that the independent method claim 7 as amended is now clearly patentable over the prior art, and that the depended method claims are patentable on their own merits, or at least as depended from the patentable claim.

As all of the claims standing for examination are now patentable as amended over the art of record, applicant respectfully requests reconsideration, and that the present case be passed quickly to issue. If there are any time extensions needed beyond any extension specifically requested with this amendment, such extension of time is hereby requested. If there are any fees due beyond any fees paid with this amendment, authorization is given to deduct such fees from deposit account 50-0534

Respectfully Submitted,
Jonathan Wu et al.
